Last month, Wakefield DECA members, along with students taking Marketing, visited FedExField: the home of the Washington Commanders in Landover, Maryland. During the visit, students heard from the team managers and they were provided a tour of the stadium. Maureen Naughton is the DECA sponsor at Wakefield and a Business, Marketing and Computer Science Teacher.

In celebration of Global Entrepreneurship Week (November 14-20, 2022), please join APS STEM and CTE for a special event at Kenmore Middle School on November 18th from 6:30-7:30 PM – Into the Metaverse – an entrepreneurs journey from backpacks to esports. This special event will be hosted by Tiffany Norwood, the 2022 Entrepreneur of the Year for Cornell University. The audience can expect an immersive experience that will include music, animations, video, and a live performance.

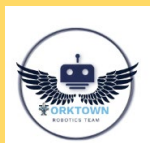

Sixth grade Family & Consumer Sciences students at Jefferson completed a career exploration assignment using the Virginia Career View website. Students researched careers related to Family & Consumer Sciences, selected a career of interest, and created a pop-up about the career. Each pop-up included such information as training/education requirements, income range, and tasks related to the job. At the conclusion of the project, students did a gallery walk to learn from their peers' presentations. Heather Boda is the FACS teacher at Jefferson.

On Friday, October 28th, the Cosmetology program at the Arlington Career Center hosted a breast cancer awareness spa day. Students offered a variety of services including haircuts, manicures, and facials. Here is a Vimeo with highlights from this event.

The FIRST Robotics club at Yorktown is looking for sponsors. The team will be participating in a FIRST Robotics competition in January and are currently preparing with two practices each week after school. For more information, please contact the club sponsor Setareh Farzinfard.
