Two decades ago, Andreas Schleicher proposed a test that would compare academic results for students across the world. PISA now tests millions of students annually and offers insights into how U.S. students stack up internationally and what strategies can improve our education system.
Schleicher, director for education and skills at the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development in Paris, will discuss findings from his new book, World Class: How to Build a 21st Century School System, then join a panel discussion on its lessons for American schools. FutureEd Director Thomas Toch will lead the panel discussion, which will also include:

- Chris Cerf, Former New Jersey Commissioner of Education and Former Superintendent of Newark Public Schools
- Lily Eskelsen Garcia, President of the National Education Association
- Patricia Levesque, Chief Executive Officer for the Foundation for Excellence in Education
- Hanna Skandera, Former New Mexico Secretary of Education

Details

When:
Tuesday, September 18, 10-11:30 a.m. ET

Where:
901 E. St. N.W., 2nd Floor Conference Room, Washington, D.C. 20004

The event will appear on livestream.

---

Register

---

FutureEd | 202.413.2247 | @futureedgu | www.future-ed.org

Enjoy our website and follow us on Facebook, Twitter, and LinkedIn